Outstanding Macmillan Texts

THE "WHY" OF MAN'S EXPERIENCE

By Hadley Cantril

This book presents in brief and non-technical fashion a new interpretation concerning the why and the how of human experience and behavior. Discussing the major goals people everywhere are trying to achieve as human beings, the book then outlines how man can act effectively to carry out his purpose. To Be Published in September

REASON IN THE ART OF LIVING

By James B. Pratt

Offering first an exposition and criticism of classical and contemporary ethical theories, the book then presents Dr. Pratt's own construction of the nature of moral value and the good life. The Christian Century stated, "This volume will come to be regarded as one of the great books in ethics." $3.25

CONTEMPORARY ETHICAL THEORIES

By Thomas E. Hill

This new book presents a survey and evaluation of the significant literature of ethical theory in the present century. Here are classified, according to type or subtype, the theories contending for a hearing today. Published in June, $3.90

ELEMENTS OF ANALYTIC PHILOSOPHY

By Arthur Pap

"An important contribution," says The Philosophical Forum of this book which applies the present-day analytic method in philosophy to a wide range of problems. Philosophical theories are carefully illustrated both in terms of everyday language and scientific language for the scientists and non-scientists. $4.60
